'Tough Decisions' Pay off for GM

Automaker returns to stock market with vast public offering

New York

General Motors returned to Wall Street with the roar of a muscle car's engine, embraced by traders at the New York Stock Exchange who stood in a crowd eight deep for the chance to buy a piece of a resurrected American icon.

Cheers normally reserved for a big stock rally went up, and then a big stock rally happened.

Almost immediately, GM stock shot from $33 per share, the price set by the company ahead of the offering, to nearly $36. The broader stock market also rose, with the Dow Jones industrials soaring nearly 200 points.

As the stock rose, so did spirits on the floor of the exchange.

"What's the last sale?" DME Securities trader Alan Valdez shouted to his assistant. "$35.50," came the reply.

"I think it's a buy," Valdez said. "Just a year ago the company was in bankruptcy. People thought they'd never sell cars again. So this is huge. What is great for GM is great for the country. It's great for Main Street."

For the White House, the stock offering was a chance to point out to voters that their majority control of GM was only temporary.

At the same time, the Obama administration took credit for rescuing a company "at the heart of America's manufacturing sector" and saving American jobs.

adopted during the worst of the economic meltdown.

Obama pointed out that the stock offering had cut the government stake by nearly half, to 33 percent from 61 percent. For the taxpayers to break even on the $50 billion federal bailout of GM, the government needs to sell the rest of its shares at an average of about $53.

The GM IPO could wind up as the largest in history. Earlier this week, GM increased the number of common shares it was offering from 365 million to 478 million because investor demand was so high. Counting preferred stock issued by the company, the deal's value could top $23 billion. (AP)

Obama: 'Imperative' To Pass Arms Treaty

New START pact is critical to security in U.S., president says

Washington

President Obama pushed Thursday for ratification of a nuclear-arms treaty with Moscow by year's end despite Republican opposition, calling the pact a "national security imperative" and warning that delaying it would weaken the United States.

He said he was confident that the treaty could attract enough votes in the Senate, where GOP reservations have set up a clash.

"There is no higher national security priority" for the lame-duck Senate session, Obama said.

The administration has signaled that it would not be discouraged after the No. 2 Senate Republican, Jon Kyl of Arizona, said that such a deal didn't seem possible.

The White House has been eager to lock in the treaty before next year, when it will require 14

The administration has so far offered $14 billion over what would have been a $70 billion nuclear modernization budget for the next decade. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

3 Dead Bodies Found in Ohio

Mount Vernon, Ohio

Authorities in Ohio said they have found the bodies of a mother, her son and a family friend who disappeared more than a week ago.

Knox County Sheriff David Barber said Thursday that the bodies were found inside a hollow tree about 20 miles northwest of their home in Howard.

A 13-year-old girl, who also disappeared, was found Saturday, bound and gagged in the home of a 30-year-old man. He is charged with kidnapping the girl. Barber says the man, Matthew Hoffman, gave information that led to the discovery of the bodies. (AP)

Flight's 'Unprecedented' Failures

Qantas crew faced flood of 54 computer warnings during trip

Washington

Nobody trains for chaos like this. Out the pilots' left window, far above the ocean, an engine as big as a bus had disintegrated, blasting shrapnel holes in the superjumbo's wing. And now an overwhelming flood of computer alarms was warning the pilots that critical systems might be failing.

Two weeks after the pilots somehow landed their Qantas jetliner and its 450 passengers, their two-hour cockpit drama was described Thursday in an interview with The Associated Press by the vice president of the Australian and International Pilots Association.

"The amount of failures is unprecedented," said Richard Woodward, a fellow Qantas A380 pilot who has spoken to all five pilots. "There is probably a one in 100 million chance to have all that go wrong."

But it did. Engine pieces sliced electric cables and hydraulic lines in the wing. Would the pilots still be able to fly the seven-story-tall plane?

The wing's forward spar — one of the beams that attaches it to the plane — was damaged as well. And the wing's two fuel tanks were punctured. As fuel leaked out, a growing imbalance was created between the left and right sides of the plane, Woodward said.

The electrical power problems prevented the pilots from pumping fuel forward from tanks in the tail. The plane became tail heavy.

Rolls-Royce modified a problematic section on new models of its engine for the world's largest jetliner months before one caught fire and blew apart over Indonesia, a Lufthansa spokesman said Thursday. est risk, safety experts said. If the plane got too far out of balance, the Singapore-to-Sydney jetliner would lose lift, stall and crash. And then there was that incredible stream of computer messages. The pilots watched as computer screens filled, only to be replaced by new screenfuls of warnings, he said.

"I don't think any crew in the world would have been trained to deal with the amount of different issues this crew faced," Woodward said. JOAN LOWY (AP)

Holloway Dental Records Tested

FBI: Aruba officials analyzing jawbone in case of missing teen

San Juan, Puerto Rico

Dutch authorities are reviewing the dental records of missing U.S. teen Natalee Holloway as they analyze a jawbone with a tooth in it that was found in Aruba last week, the FBI told The Associated Press on Thursday.

The girl's father, Dave Holloway, said earlier that he provided the records but added that he had received no new official information on the investigation on the Dutch island in the Caribbean.

"The authorities haven't confirmed anything with me," he told the AP in a telephone interview. "It's pretty much total silence."

Paul Daymond, an FBI spokesman in Birmingham, Ala., said the agency sent some records electronically Wednesday and shipped the remaining dental impressions. It is unclear when those would arrive.

A tourist found a jawbone last Friday and took it to the front desk of the Phoenix Hotel, said Ann Angela, spokeswoman for the Aruba prosecutor's office. It was then sent to the Netherlands for analysis, though there has been no announcement on whether the bone is human.

"If it turns out to be a human bone, the investigation will continue," Angela said. "We cannot say when the results will be in."

A forensic scientist in Aruba, however, has said that the bone is from a human female, Dave Holloway told the AP. DANICA COTO (AP)

Sweden to Issue Warrant for Julian Assange

Stockholm

The Australian behind the biggest leak of U.S. war documents in history is wanted by Sweden in a drawn-out rape probe, and could soon face an international arrest warrant curtailing his ability to jump from one country to another.

A Swedish court on Thursday approved a motion to bring Julian Assange, the 39-year-old founder of WikiLeaks, into custody for questioning. Assange is suspected of rape, sexual molestation and unlawful coercion.

He has denied the allegations, which stem from his encounters with two women during a visit to Sweden in August. (AP)

Trapping Atoms: Scientists may have been able to capture elusive atoms of antimatter, but don't expect that to lead to interstellar rocket engines. While such atoms have been created routinely in the lab for years, they tend to disappear so fast that scientists don't have a chance to study them. In an online report published by Nature, scientists said they'd been able to trap individual atoms and keep them around for a bit more than one-tenth of a second. (AP)

Nobel Award in Limbo

China may prevent prisoner Liu, family from accepting prize

Oslo, Norway

The Nobel Peace Prize may not be handed out this year, because China is not likely to let anyone from imprisoned award-winner Liu Xiaobo's family attend the ceremony, a Nobel official said, calling China's diplomatic pressure this year unprecedented.

Outraged by the award, Beijing has reportedly clamped down on Liu's relatives and pressured other countries not to send representatives to the Dec. 10 award ceremony in Oslo.

Ambassadors from Russia, Cuba, Kazakhstan, Morocco and Iraq have all declined invitations to the ceremony but didn't specify

Backstory

Liu Xiaobo, a Chinese dissident, is serving an 11-year sentence for subversion after co-authoring an appeal calling for reforms to China's one-party political system. His wife, Liu Xia, has been under house arrest and subject to police escort since the award was announced last month. Friends of the couple's say all of the couple's closest family members are under tight police surveillance aimed at preventing them from attending the ceremony. (AP) the reasons, Geir Lundestad, secretary of the Norwegian Nobel Committee, told The Associated Press on Thursday.

"For an embassy to actively try to persuade other embassies to not participate in the ceremony is something new," Lundestad said.

The prestigious $1.4 million award can be collected only by the laureate or the laureate's close family members.

"The way it looks now, it is not likely that someone from his close family will attend," Lundestad said. "Then we will not give out the medal and the diploma during the ceremony."

The committee's chairman, Thorbjørn Jagland, also said the prize will probably not be awarded, and it's not very likely that anyone else can come to Oslo so no one will be able to receive the prize, he said before a speaking engagement at Harvard University in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

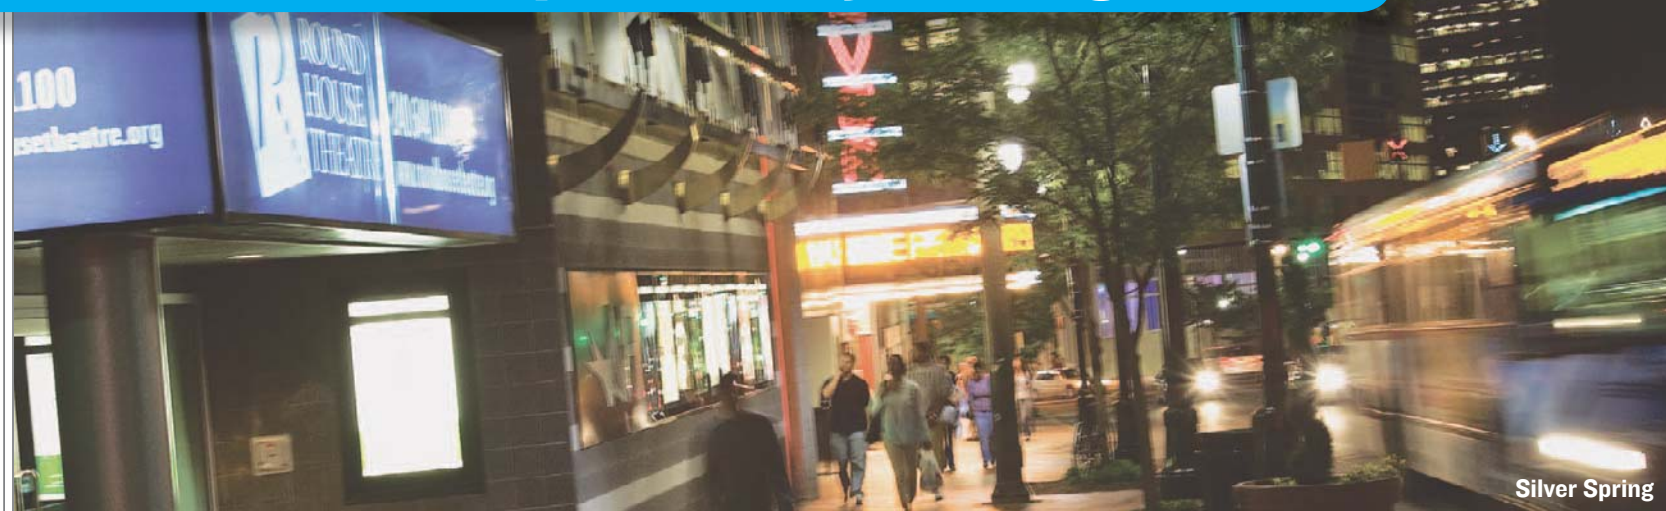

"[Liu] will be present during the ceremony by a reading of his text," Jagland added." (AP)

Security Holds Up Justice in D.C.

New Superior Court plan lengthens lines, delays proceedings

Washington

Enhanced security measures at D.C. Superior Court have created long lines of people trying to get inside the courthouse this week and have delayed some proceedings.

Jurors deciding the fate of Ingmar Guandique, the man charged with killing former federal intern Chandra Levy, were supposed to begin deliberations at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. But several jurors were still in line as late as 10 a.m. Deliberations did not begin until about 10:20 a.m. The jury is expected to resume deliberations on Friday morning.

The line to get through the metal detectors this week has rivaled security checkpoints at Dulles International Airport on a Friday. Some regulars at the courthouse are concerned about justice delayed.

Defense attorney Stephen Jackson paced outside the door waiting for his client, who was supposed to be at the courthouse at 9 a.m. About 45 minutes later, the judge overseeing Jackson's case had issued a warrant for his client's arrest for failing to appear.

"He's in line. This is ridiculous," Jackson said.

A new head of security was hired recently and has installed a new security plan. Also, in a recent test of the security system, dubbed "operation tick tock," undercover officers were able to smuggle weapons into the courthouse, according to sources.

Prospective jurors have also been held up in the line. Lorraine Parham of Hillcrest and Stephanie Hampton of Southwest Washington were supposed to have checked in at the jury office at 10:30 a.m. The women reached the courthouse at 10 a.m., they said. But they didn't get inside until an hour later.

"They should have separate entrances for jurors. If they want us to give up our time, they should at least make it accommodating," Parham said. KEITH L. ALEXANDER (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Metro: Construction to Blame In Farragut North Roof Accident

Washington

Metro says it will take weeks to repair the dome above the Farragut North station, where chunks of concrete were dislodged by construction work and fell onto a platform Wednesday. Authorities reopened the station Thursday morning after closing it Wednesday.

Metro Assistant General Manager Dave Kubicek told the Metro board's Safety and Security Committee on Thursday that jackhammering from a D.C. Department of Transportation project on the street overhead broke through the dome above the shallow station. Concrete chunks fell Wednesday onto the station ceiling panels and then onto the platform below. No one was hurt.

Kubicek says Metro monitors work near its stations and will review the incident with the Department of Transportation.

Metro spokeswoman Lisa Farbstain says a thick plywood cover is in place above the station now, but permanent repairs will take weeks. (AP)

Falling Flat as a Redskin

McNabb's poor play is a red flag for a team seeking a long-term answer at quarterback

JOHN MCDONNELL/TWP

The Redskins

Too much consideration is given to the eggshell egos of starting quarterbacks. Nobody wants to say it, but Donovan McNabb is responsible for a lot of what's wrong with the Redskins. That's nothing personal against McNabb, who is one of the game's great gentlemen. It's just honest.

It's said that quarterbacks get too much credit and too much blame, but there's no denying McNabb's play is a liability for the Redskins at the moment. Certainly, there are other explanations for their two-game slide to a 4-5 record, from injuries, to a thin roster, to coaching decisions. But significant accountability rests with McNabb, who by the latest measurements is performing like one of the worst quarterbacks in the NFL.

Overall, McNabb ranks 29th, and he's been outplayed by Chad Henne, Shaun Hill and Alex Smith, among others. Most crucially, he ranks dead last on third-down plays, successful on just 24 of 111 attempts. That's an abysmal rate. Third down is the very heart of a quarterback's responsibility. To be blunt, it's what McNabb gets paid for.

If things continue this way, Mike Shanahan's decision to go to Rex Grossman in the final 1 minute 50 seconds against the Detroit Lions is going to look increasingly pardonable. It was a bad decision, and Redskins' management salvaged McNabb's hurt feelings with a contract extension. But there's a good reason the new deal is light

Third-Down Woes

If there is one thing that has haunted the Redskins' offense more than any other deficiency this season, it's the inability to convert on third downs | Sports, page 19 on guaranteed money, and is structured to give them an out.

McNabb's agent Fletcher Smith says he expects the Redskins to pick up those options, given "Donovan's stature." Stature, schmature. Frankly, if McNabb doesn't perform better over the next seven games, it's hard to see why he should continue to be the starter next year.

Wasn't the idea of trading for McNabb that he would be a significant upgrade at quarterback? McNabb's apologists will say he's dealing with an unstable offensive line, injuries in the backfield, and a dearth of receivers. This is all true. But these are exactly the problems McNabb was brought in to alleviate. He was supposed to help compensate for their roster shortcomings with his ability to make a play.

It's hard to finger the exact cause of McNabb's struggles. Some of his drive-stalling ineffectiveness is due to plaguing inaccuracy. He's been imprecise on short and medium range passes. McNabb has huge compensations as a strong-armed slinger of the ball who can extend plays with his legs. But he's been stiff in his movements lately, suffering from sore hamstrings. For all of his deep strike ability, his inability to establish a rhythm so far has made this the worst season of his career statistically.

It's early for this conclusion, but you begin to wonder whether the 33-year-old's well-used legs can be the foundation the Redskins hoped they would be for years to come.

In the short term, the Redskins have no choice but to hope McNabb finds himself in the Shanahan system and regains some freshness in his legs. Another benching in favor of Grossman doesn't seem to be a good option.

But in the longer term, McNabb's "stature" shouldn't prevent the Redskins from making a change if McNabb doesn't start to play considerably better. This isn't to say McNabb has lost his value — just that his value may be as an excellent tutor for some nice young draft pick. McNabb will always be a priceless acquisition for his example of quiet, unselfish professionalism.

The reality is that the Redskins can't afford for him to keep playing this way. It affects the well-being of the franchise disproportionately. He bears more responsibility than other players. The Redskins' commitment to McNabb at this point is a pure leap of faith, based on past performance. But it's no guarantee of the future. SALLY JENKINS (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Backstory

On Monday, ESPN was the first to report that McNabb signed a five-year extension for $78 million, with $40 million guaranteed. But it was revealed Tuesday that only $3.5 million of the package is guaranteed. That could make it relatively easy for Washington to sever ties with the six-time Pro Bowler after this season. The team could even potentially select a young quarterback in the 2011 draft and groom him to replace McNabb, possibly as early as next season. The Redskins have until the first game of the 2011 season to exercise their $10 million option. (TWP)

A Tale of 2 QBs

Not only do Donovan McNabb's numbers this year compare unfavorably to his most recent years with the Philadelphia Eagles, but they are also a drop-off in many respects to the stats of Jason Campbell, the quarterback he replaced in Washington. (EXPRESS)

Redskins head coach Mike Shanahan calls out orders in the Redskins' 59-28 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles on Monday night.

The Third Degree

The Redskins seek answers for failure to keep drives moving

The Redskins

They're last, and it's not even close.

Everyone in town may have a theory on why Washington (4-5) isn't consistently winning football games, but one thing stands certain — no team that converts just 21.6 percent of its third downs is going to have much success.

Coming off a shellacking at the hands of division rival Philadelphia, it's easy to question why the Redskins' defense just wasn't up to par. But a bad game on their part combined with the performance of a lifetime by Eagles quarterback Michael Vick doesn't exactly veil the Redskins' ineptitude to move the ball on the most important down in football.

"It is just something we have been very poor on," coach Mike Shanahan said. "We are going to continue to work on it. We moved the football and did some good things [against Philadelphia], but not quite good enough."

It's a reasonable argument: No matter what you think of Philadelphia's defensive effort once the Eagles were up four touchdowns, the Redskins still put up a season-

Backstory

The Tennessee Titans, just like the Redskins, carry a two-game losing skid into Sunday's game. But they have at least one reason to be optimistic ahead of this week's contest: the AFC South squad carries a 12-game winning streak against NFC opponents. With another win, Tennessee would tie Miami (1978-81) and New Orleans (1987-90) for the second-longest interconference streak since the AFL-NFL merger in 1970. The Titans swept the NFC North in 2008 and the NFC West in 2009, and they've already won on the road in beating the New York Giants and Dallas Cowboys this season. They added a win over Philadelphia on Oct. 24. (AP) high 28 points in Monday night's loss. But masked behind that point total, the 295 passing yards for quarterback Donovan McNabb and 89 rushing yards for tailback Keiland Williams is an ugly 0 for 10 on third down. Four of those opportunities required the Redskins to get four yards or less.

"You've got to convert on third downs. If you don't, you're not going to win."

— COACH MIKE SHANAHAN, SUMMING UP THE BIGGEST PROBLEM WITH THE REDSKINS' OFFENSE THIS SEASON. THEY WENT 0-10 MONDAY NIGHT ON THIRD DOWN.

For the season, Washington is 24 for 111 on third down. The next-worst teams — Chicago at 28.7 percent and Arizona at 29.1 percent — are the only other squads in the NFL converting fewer than 30 percent of their third down chances.

Fans' discord aside, a disjointed third down performance isn't necessarily shocking considering the make-up and progress of the team. Shanahan and McNabb are both new arrivals this season. The offensive line has drastically changed from last year and may be changed again in the off-season. And with the exception of Chris Cooley and Santana Moss, the skill position players who have seen the most time on the field are mostly new or unproven.

The offense will have a tough task cleaning things up this weekend when the Redskins travel to Tennessee to take on the Titans (5-4), a team that is ninth in the NFL in points against and has 20 takeaways already this season.

"It's collective miscues, it's timing issues," McNabb said of the current problems with the offense. "We have to clean up. It's a whole different ball game if we clean that up." ERIC BRANDNER

Terps Seek to Win the ACC, Fans

Terps Football

Don't just watch the game on Saturday night. Watch the stands, too.

When Maryland kicks off against No. 25 Florida State, in a game with implications for the postseason and beyond, scan for empty seats. Check the luxury boxes, conceived of in the glow of coach Ralph Friedgen's successful first years. The ones the school has struggled to sell as the team has fallen well short of expectations.

If a team wins and no one sees it, does it make a decent bowl game? Does the team sign the star recruit? "We're excited and hoping that we get a good turnout this week so we can have a big atmosphere for a big-time game," said QB Danny O'Brien, the ACC rookie of the year front-runner.

The semi-renaissance at College Park has been forged with a conspicuous absence of spectators — an average of fewer than 38,000 fans at the 54,000-seat stadium.

The Terrapins (7-3, 4-2 in the ACC) can win the ACC Atlantic Division with two victories to end the season. Friedgen likely has secured his job for next year but the program remains in flux and at the whim of a fickle fan base.

With victories and back-to-back packed houses, Maryland could improve its chances for everything from a trip to the Orange Bowl, for the ACC champion, to subsequent possibilities, including the Chick-fil-A Bowl in Atlanta and the Champs Sports Bowl in Orlando — easier sells to recruits than the less prestigious Military Bowl in D.C.

"We know that Byrd Stadium will be rocking, and that gives us something to look forward to play in," receiver Torrey Smith said. "It's exciting to see what our crowd can do to help us out." DEREK TURNER

For Once, It's Not Snyder's Fault

When in doubt, blame the owner. Why not? That's what everyone seems to be doing this week.

Fans and pundits alike have their villain for how a 4-3 team dreaming of the playoffs got mired in controversy amid two pitiful performances on the gridiron. Not surprisingly, Dan Snyder is the punching bag.

Since he's been running the Redskins, splashy signings and off-field news have taken precedence over how the football team performs.

If anyone is to blame for the culture that so badly needs to be reformed at Redskins Park, it's him. But why do I sense the blame is misguided in this case?

Could it be that a coach with a major Napoleon complex is now in charge? Does anyone think Mike Sha-

Does anyone think Shanahan's ego would allow him to take orders from the owner's box?

Shanahan's ego would really allow him to take orders from the owner's box?

Shanahan would be the first to admit he's responsible for how the Redskins perform on the field. And his benching of Donovan McNabb added an unnecessary headache that was only exasperated by the quarterback's oddly timed contract extension (and the out clause revealed a day later). If anything, Snyder should be commended for signing off on a deal that doesn't bind Washington to the struggling star.

Shanahan has some explaining to do. Since he won't admit any faults in public, his best bet is to get the Redskins to play better. The man with the Super Bowl rings is in charge. But is he up to the task?

Turn a new page in home furnishing by using books

Interior Design

When Linda Kerr and her husband, Andrew, bought their Vienna, Va., home, the first thing they did was add custom built-in bookcases to their living room. "We have what I feel like are millions of books," says Kerr, 35. "My husband reads like mad and writes his own book reviews, and he believes in buying hardbacks and not giving them away."

Until that point, many of those books had lived in boxes, traveling from home to home that way and never making it onto a shelf. Now they line the wall on either side of the fireplace, organized by color.

"I had seen somewhere on a design show that if you organize by color, it doesn't look quite so busy," says Kerr, who works part time in marketing and public relations. "But it drives my husband crazy because he can't find a book on there unless he remembers the color of the book jacket."

Of course, switching to an e-reader would eliminate the need for all this physical storage space. But for many bookworms, curling up in a comfy chair with an iPad or Kindle just doesn't compare to flipping through a dog-eared copy of "Pride and Prejudice" or cracking open the newest novel from Salman Rushdie. These rampant readers remain purists to the printed page, and as a result, their treasured tomes become a vital part of their home décor.

“I mistrust a house that doesn’t have books,” says Kim Myles, host of HGTV’s “Myles of Style” and “Holiday Battle on the Block” (premieres at 8 p.m. on Nov. 28). “Books literally and visually tell a story. They say to you and the people who come into your home that there is history here. Life has been lived here, and there is a point of view.”

Of course, it can be a challenge to corral all those travel guides, thrillers and chick-lit classics, especially if you live in a smaller home. Built-in shelves prove a great option in this case, helping you make the most of any wasted space in your pad.

“Sometimes condos have these awkward structural columns that protrude into the room,” says D.C. interior designer Emily Bishop (202-232-4161, Emilybishop.com). “I’m a big fan of building shelves into that space and using that as a place to store your books.”

Including cabinets on the lower level of shelving provides a spot to stash those ratty textbooks or trashy romance novels you just can’t part with. “We put some of the uglier books in there,” says Abigail Aguirre, 47, who added built-in bookcases to the library in her Arlington home: “Paperbacks, the ‘Dummies’ books — things you don’t really want people to see that you read.”

Built-ins do require a bit of a commitment, though, so if you’re not ready to take that leap, you can create a similar effect in a more temporary way. “I’m a huge fan of picking a corner in a room and doing a series of small floating shelves all the way up to the ceiling,” Myles says. “I think it’s a great solution since corners are underutilized, and you get a really graphic effect.”

There’s nothing wrong with standard bookcases, but something unexpected helps showcase your love of sci-fi stories or collection of childhood faves in a more powerful way. Store cookbooks on an antique baker’s rack, for example, or use a chrome cocktail cart to hold titles on midcentury architecture.

“If you have a mantel and you’re a book lover, display your books from one end to the other,” Myles says. “Get two good bookends, and it looks really clean and modern. It’s like a visual art statement.”

Sometimes, all you need are the books themselves — albeit

When using a more traditional bookshelf, take time to arrange volumes in a way that both makes sense to you (by topic or alphabetically, for instance) and is visually pleasing. Italian company Boffi brings its minimalist bathroom and kitchen styles to Georgetown

Home Design

High-end design firm Boffi opened a new location in Georgetown (3320 M St. NW; Boffigeorgetown.com) in September, ready to remake D.C. one bathroom and kitchen at a time in its modern, minimalist look. Previously, Boffi products were sold in Georgetown at a Boffi franchise shop; the new store is a Milan-based direct-trade showroom.

"It's not per accident that we are here in Georgetown," says Julia Walter, showroom manager. Designer Piero Lissoni and Chief Executive Officer Roberto Gavazzi "always look for a special character in a place, a special ambience. Since Georgetown is so beautiful with all the old homes, it just makes such a beautiful contrast for our product."

That product comes in two forms: ready-made accessories, such as a $76 ceramic soap dish or a $32,000 Corian bathtub; and custom-built full designs, complete with cabinetry and appliances.

The company, which has more than 60 showrooms worldwide in countries such as Israel, Spain, South Korea and Mexico, has been adding pieces for other rooms, such as a dining room table, and tweaking kitchen counter modules to include a side of shelves facing a dining or family room.

"We try to incorporate meeting the border between kitchen and living room. That's something that's become more popular," Walter says.

We asked Walter, an architect who's worked at the 76-year-old company since 2004, to tell us what else is hot right now.

"We try to incorporate meeting the border between kitchen and living room. That's something that's become more popular."

Painted exposed brick walls and glass stair railings in Boffi's Georgetown showroom are representative of the firm's functional, understated and sleek design aesthetic.

Showroom manager Julia Walter says Georgetown makes an ideal home for Boffi.

What's so special about kitchens and bathrooms?

Kitchens and bathrooms are probably the most expensive areas in a house where you have to put in the most money to make it look better or different from what you had before. That's because of plumbing and electricity and a lot of items — sinks, toilets, shower and/or tub, tiles. Everything that is considered a built-in product has a lot of ... thinking behind it. You have to not only consider the furniture itself but all the plumbing.

What's new in home design these days?

A trend in the furniture is that you don't see handles anymore. There are no recessed handles or mounted handles.

Why hide the handles?

The layout and location of kitchens has changed a lot over the years. The kitchen is not "abandoned" in a separated room anymore but became more and more the center of life and lifestyle. With this change of location, the kitchen shifted more toward the center of a house and is nowadays planned open to the dining and living room area. Making the kitchen the center of attraction, the mounted handles disappeared and were trans formed into solutions without handles or recessed handles. Working with recessed handles or solutions without handles makes the transition to the surrounding living and dining room areas easier. The kitchen design becomes part of the overall design.

Does the design in one room have to flow into the next?

It doesn't necessarily. From my experience, it is very nice if it does, but I've installed kitchens in apartments, and the kitchen had very high-end Boffi furniture, and the moment I made a step into the living room, I thought I was in a different century. It can work either way.

A kitchen designed in shades of gray allows appliances and gadgets to stand out.

What's the most important element in a kitchen?

The triangle that you work in, meaning the space in between the refrigerator and the wash basin and oven. It's not really one specific cabinet or something. To make a kitchen very functional, it has to be laid out in the best possible way. Sometimes there are restrictions in terms of plumbing or electricity or an island. It is a little bit like a puzzle.

What about colors?

The strongest colors or color ranges that we use are very pure white, a bright white, and off-white, sand tone, and a lot of gray tones. We try to keep the design and fronts as sleek and simple as possible because when you come to a kitchen or bathroom, you have sponges and towels and all those little accessories that give a color to it. All the tools you have in a kitchen, all the pots and pans make the kitchen come to life, so it really doesn't need a lot of color in the first place. Also, if you have a white or a gray, it mostly works with any floor, rather than if you have a special color, which is harder to match with a floor.

What's better: a tub or shower?

My personal preference is a shower. But as bathrooms become more and more part of this whole spa

"I think there is no city like New York. It gives you so much creativity. But I have to say I was very astonished about the architecture in D.C. I've always loved the contrast between old and new, so I love all those old houses, which you can fill with very contemporary furniture."

Italian Whimsy

The Alessi Store, which opened last month in Cady's Alley, brings playful, affordable housewares to Georgetown — making a culturally appropriate neighbor for the nearby Boffi showroom.

The Italian company is known for its witty versions of everyday objects, from bottle openers to pasta cookers, designed by more than 200 noted architects and designers.

Alessi's seventh American store is a jewel box just off the Kafe Leopold courtyard in what is known as Georgetown's Design District. Alessi was founded in 1921, and its store shelves hold a history of familiar household items, such as the Dr. Skud fly swatter ($16) by French design superstar Philippe Starck.

"We like to think of them as items that make you smile," said Alessio Alessi, the chief executive officer and third generation to run the family company. "Our business is function and emotion."

Shoppers explore Georgetown's Alessi Store at a launch party in October.

experience feeling, I think bathtubs will come more in trend. Because of the functionality, showers are just easier, but if you have the time to spend, the bathtub is the place where you can relax.

Say you can redo only a part of the bathroom. What do you focus on?

The vanity, with a mirror and everything that belongs to it. That is the part that you use all the time. You wash your hands; you go there in the morning. It's that part where you spend the most time. The vanity is something you make special for your needs.

STEPHANIE KANOWITZ

"Our business is function and emotion."

Alessi's personality-filled wares include a clock ($155), teakettle ($175) and cork-screw ($60).

Alessi designs perform ordinary tasks of modern life with a bit of extra style: You'll find cute sweater defuzzers, sushi trays and a stainless-steel nutcracker shaped like a squirrel.

Over the years, Alessi has created about 3,000 products. Alessi pieces are part of many permanent museum collections of modern design.

"I think it's like candy to the eye," said Deborah Kalkstein, who owns and operates the new Alessi Store and owns Contemporaria, a shop that sells modern European furniture just down the cobblestone alley.

"For me, the most exciting part is that there is a product for everyone: men and women, the old and the young, even for your dog," Kalkstein said, pointing out designer Miriam Mirri's fetching Lupita canine watering station in stainless steel topped with a white dog bone.

Michel Richard
CHEF, PAINTER, THANKSGIVING FAN

IT JUST GOT EASIER to get your Michel Richard fix. The French chef behind Michel Richard Citronelle and Central Michel Richard recently opened his third area restaurant, Michel, at the Ritz-Carlton at Tysons. He also just wrote a desserts-centric cookbook, “Sweet Magic” ($28, Ecco). Richard spoke to us about sweets and why Americans might trump the French when it comes to making them.

What’s the secret to whipping up a great dessert?
Love, simple. Make it simple, take your time, and don’t rush. Understand the recipe and you’ll be a perfect chef. And they’ll say, “Good-bye, Michel Richard, we don’t need you anymore.” If you’re making something for all the people you love, it’s easier.

Is there such a thing as a bad dessert, and have you made one?
Yes. I don’t give it to my friends, I don’t give it to my guests; it lands in the garbage can.

What was the worst dessert you’ve ever made?
I did it about two years ago. The recipe [for sabayon cream] called for sugar; I used salt. It looked strange, and when I tasted it, it tasted disgusting.

In “Sweet Magic,” you wrote that American home cooks are generally better at making desserts than French home cooks. Why?
In France, you have pastry shops in every street. Here, it’s not tradition to buy dessert from the pastry shop. In France, my mother would be a disaster with a dessert — I’m sorry, Mom. She’s in heaven now. But I remember she would be trying to cut down on the cost, so when the recipe called for a pound of butter, my mother was doing half a pound of margarine.

What other things do you like about America?
For me, the best is Thanksgiving. You don’t need to buy gifts for anybody. It’s a gift for the stomach because it’s great, great food.

“For me, the best is Thanksgiving. You don’t need to buy gifts for anyone. It’s a gift for the stomach.”

Do you cook Thanksgiving dinner for your family?
I try to be invited. I don’t need to work [at home], because the morning of Thanksgiving I need to go to the restaurant. In the afternoon, my wife does the food, or friends make it for me. I love it.

You illustrated “Sweet Magic” with your own paintings. How did you get into art?
When I was young, I used to go to church. There was an old man who was painting the church, making a painting of our village. I was talking to him all the time. One day he gave me a book of Renoir or Van Gogh. I read the book and fell in love with the Impressionists.

How often do you paint now?
Mostly when I work on a recipe. I design the recipe and then paint it. That helps me to create, because I see the dishes in front of my face. I cook on paper. It’s funny — when I draw the dish, I can taste it.
KATIE ABERBACH (EXPRESS)

Event Horizon | The House Haunt?

About 80 properties reported to be ghost-infested — from Edgar Allan Poe’s Baltimore digs to New Jersey taverns — star in photographer Corinne May Botz’s new book, “Haunted Houses.” She’ll talk about it and show off her spookily lovely images Monday at 7 p.m. Tickets $15. Corcoran Gallery of Art, 500 17th St. NW; Corcoran.org.

Crust Us

MAYBE YOU MISSED

that lesson in kindergarten about a little concept called "sharing." But you won't need it to reap the benefits of the Breville Personal Pie maker ($100, Williams-Sonoma), which has officially made obsolete the dividing and partaking of crusty goodness with others, and may possibly eliminate holiday dessert crises across the land. In 10 minutes, the gadgets transformed our store-bought crust and apple pie filling into four perfectly shaped golden pastries that could put Mom to shame. Don't tell her we said that.

Ever Crafter

YOUR JOY IN baking cupcakes in Mason jars or hemming pants may evaporate at the Washington Craft Show (Fri.-Sun., Washington Convention Center, 801 Mt. Vernon Place NW; 202-249-3000), where artisans such as Jessica Beels sell cooler-than-you-could-make jewelry (paper/metal necklace, shown, $325), pots and tables. But they might inspire you to take up knitting or start X-Acto-knifing that 400-page pop-up novel.

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

My in-laws are coming for Thanksgiving. My mother-in-law always makes remarks about how I don't dress up. My husband is an only child, so I don't think she understands what it's like to raise three boys. Still, I'm going to make an effort. Please suggest something that'll make me look super-fantastic as I baste a turkey. — MELISSA

Manolo says, while the Manolo deplores in-laws who get all up in one's business with the catty comments, the Manolo also deplores how the family ceremonies are now merely one more opportunity to loosen the drawstrings on the pants of sweat.

The Manolo applauds his friend's decision to dress up, even if she does so to please the sharp-tongued person who should be locked out on the patio like the misbehaving family dog. But, we are civilized peoples of breeding and common sense. We cannot force this woman to stand in the snow, nose pressed against the door, watching her family eat turkey. We must turn the other cheek and tolerate barbs as best we can, because it is better when we show the generous spirit to those we love, even when they are not generous with us. Remember, in the not-too-distant future, your own daughters-in-law will wish to banish you to the patio.

Here is the Marli Too from Kate Spade ($275, Zappos.com), the comfy wedge favored, according to the New York Times, by the lady politicians. Who knows better how to smile politely while being insulted than them?

Ask the Manolo a question at manolo@shoeblogs.com. Visit the Manolo at shoeblogs.com.

FOWL PLAY

Like duck, turkey stands up well to strong, spicy flavors — which might be why many Southern tables let good times roll with a turducken — a Cajun combination of a chicken stuffed in a duck stuffed in a turkey. Scott Drewno, executive chef at Wolfgang Puck’s Asian fusion temple, The Source (575 Pennsylvania Ave. NW; 202-637-6100), takes that idea a bit further afield, using Chinese spices to lacquer the whole bird. “No matter how you decide to cook your turkey for Thanksgiving, brine it,” he says. “That ensures you get a terrific taste.”

CHEF SCOTT DREWNO’S CHINESE GOBBLER

Benjamin Franklin, who wasn’t in favor of the bald eagle being the official symbol of the United States, much preferred the turkey, which he called a “respectable bird, and withal a true original native of America.” Historians aren’t sure whether that’s why the tom headlines on most Thanksgiving tables, but one thing’s certain: Part of the reason you’re serving a Butterball or heritage American Bronze is due to the fowl’s versatility. “Turkey is a blank slate, ready to receive any flavor imprints. The meat is mild and the breast is porous, so it absorbs seasonings well. If you brine it, the salty, spicy liquid can permeate all the way to the bone,” says Grace Parisi, senior recipe developer at Food & Wine magazine. So, if you want to send your turkey on a round-the-world taste trip, check out these relatively simple recipes from three top D.C. chefs. MONICA BHIDE

- Serves 16-20
◆ 18-10 pound turkey
- Brine
◆ 3 gallons water
◆ 5 carrots
◆ 5 stalks celery
◆ 10 onions, chopped
◆ 1/2 cup garlic cloves, smashed
◆ 2 tablespoons smashed ginger
◆ 2 tablespoons black peppercorns
◆ 11/2 cups salt
◆ 11/2 cups rice wine vinegar
◆ 3/4 cup sugar

ON THE SIDE: Try ginger-glazed yams, Szechuan-style green beans and to sip, a pinot noir.

- Turkey marinade and stuffing:
◆ Szechuan pepper and sea salt as needed
◆ Chinese sausage fried rice (optional)
◆ Peanut oil as needed

Method
Combine all brine ingredients in a large pot. Bring to a boil. Remove from heat and allow the brine to come to room temperature.
Add turkey to the brine, cover and leave overnight in the refrigerator.
Remove turkey from brine and pat dry. Pre-heat oven to 450 F.
Season generously inside and out with Szechuan pepper and sea salt. Optional: Stuff it with Chinese sausage fried rice you make or take-out.

Place turkey in roasting pan and roast for 20 minutes. Brush skin with peanut oil and lower heat to 350 F. Cover turkey loosely with foil and roast until internal temp reaches 160 F. Remove from the oven and let it rest for 20 minutes before carving.
Pour Szechuan sauce over the top before serving.
Drewno likes to serve his turkey with a (very spicy!) Szechuan-style sauce. For the recipe, go to Express-nightout.com.

- ▶ 1 pound ground turkey
- ▶ 1/4 cup chopped red onion
- ▶ 1 tablespoon minced ginger
- ▶ 1 teaspoon crushed garlic
- ▶ 1/2 teaspoon cumin seeds
- ▶ 2 teaspoons chopped cilantro
- ▶ 1 teaspoon garam masala (store-bought or homemade Indian spice mix)
- ▶ 1 teaspoon salt
- ▶ 1/2 teaspoon minced fresh red chili paste

Method

In a large bowl, combine the turkey, onion, ginger, garlic, cumin, cilantro, garam masala, salt and red chili paste.

Divide the mixture into 20 balls; place them on a lightly oiled baking sheet and flatten into patties.

Bake at 350 F for 12 to 15 minutes, until cooked through.

ON THE SIDE: Serve with mixed vegetables, rice pilaf with dried fruits and nuts and cranberry chutney. To sip? Masala chai.

You won't find turkey curry on menus in India. But K.N. Vinod, co-owner of Indique Heights (2 Wisconsin Circle, Chevy Chase; 301-656-4822) tasted it there in 1980. "I was working at a hotel in South India. A group of homesick Americans was staying there during Thanksgiving," he recalls. "I found a Christian priest, who sold me a turkey and surprised them with a traditional Thanksgiving dinner." Vinod says turkey has a great affinity for Indian spices; so do his kitchen cohorts S.B. Bala Murugan (top photo) and Edwin Dass (bottom photo), who helped him with this recipe.

A SPANISH TALE

Haidar Karoum, executive chef of Proof (775 G St. NW; 202-737-7663) and Estadio (1520 14th St. NW; 202-319-1404), has never met a gobbler when visiting Spain. But he thinks gobbler breast makes a good base for bold Spanish flavors such as garlic, smoked paprika and sherry. "When I think about turkey on Thanksgiving, it is not just about the bird but also the combination of the meat with gravy, stuffing, cranberries and yams," he says.

CHEF HAIDAR KAROUM'S SAUTEED SPANISH TURKEY BREASTServes 4

- ▶ 4 tablespoons olive oil
- ▶ 1 1/2 pounds turkey breast, boneless, skinless
- ▶ Salt to taste
- ▶ 1 red bell pepper, diced
- ▶ 1 green bell pepper, diced
- ▶ 1/2 yellow onion, diced
- ▶ 2 garlic cloves, minced
- ▶ 1/4 cup green olives, pitted, chopped
- ▶ 3 tablespoons parsley, minced
- ▶ 1 teaspoon smoked paprika (pimenton)
- ▶ 6 tablespoons dry sherry

ON THE SIDE: Sautéed Catalan-style spinach (with raisins, pine nuts, onion and apple), and roasted young potatoes with sliced leeks and chorizo. To drink? A light Spanish red such as a Garnacha.

Method

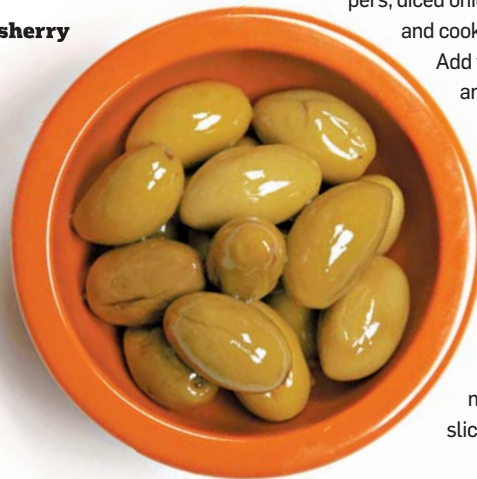

Heat 2 tablespoons olive oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat.

While the oil is heating, slice 1 1/2 pounds boneless, skinless turkey breast into 1/4-inch slices. Season with kosher salt and gently lay them in the hot pan. Work in batches if your skillet won't hold all the slices in a single layer.

Flip the turkey slices once they start to brown on the bottom, about two minutes. Cook for two minutes more on the other side. Transfer to a platter and keep warm.

Add another 2 tablespoons of oil to the same skillet and lower the heat to medium. Add the diced bell peppers, diced onion and garlic cloves, and cook, stirring, for a minute. Add the chopped olives and the pimenton, and cook for a minute more.

Stir in the sherry and parsley, and cook just until it bubbles. The vegetables should remain a bit crisp. Spoon the pepper mixture over the turkey slices and serve.

Awesome Season

My birthday is next month, so I'm used to getting lost in the Christmas shuffle. But I don't mind, because December is almost always Awesome Movie Month. I have a spreadsheet to keep track of new films, and I can tell you right now that December looks AWFULLY good.

The party starts early with "Burlesque" (above; you know you'll see it!) next Wednesday, making Thanksgiving truly a day of gratitude. Then, "Black Swan," Darren Aronofsky's trippy-looking look at ballet. "The King's Speech" arrives on Dec. 10 (though I got to see it already, nyah-nyah.) The AFI Silver has a film festival starting on the 17th, and it includes "A Christmas Story," which means you can see it in order, not in the bits you catch during TBS' 24-hour marathon.

"Rabbit Hole" opens in limited release on the 17th (I don't know whether it opens in D.C. then, or whether we'll have to wait for wider release) and the brilliance of the play will make me overlook the fact that I don't much care for Nicole Kidman. And then on the 25th comes "True Grit," a Coen brothers remake of the John Wayne classic.

Most of these late-year releases are rushing for Oscar consideration, but that makes sense; I'm guessing that most of these films will be in the running for Academy Awards — I'll call Colin Firth in "The King's Speech" as Best Actor right now. But this embarrassment of riches makes it feel like Christmas all month long.

A Work of Dark Arts

Harry and his friends chase down Voldemort in the intensely bleak 'Deathly Hallows-Part 1'

Film Review

"Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows-Part 1" can't be anything but unsatisfying. As the first part of the last movie in a 10-year franchise that has taken on almost theological meaning for a generation of readers and filmgoers, it's meant to leave audiences wanting more. It's half of a really good movie, full of the enchantment, emotion and incident for which the "Potter" series has become so fanatically cherished.

"Deathly Hallows-Part 1" is also grim, downbeat and unimaginably sad, preparing viewers for the inevitable day next summer when the second "Deathly Hallows" installment arrives in theaters and they must say goodbye for the last time. With its gray palette and elegiac tone, this penultimate offering is just right for what it is: the beginning of the end.

It barely merits noting that the seventh "Harry Potter" film is best enjoyed by hard-core Potter fans; if you don't know a Dumbledore from a Gryffindor, you're probably in the wrong theater. As for the Potterheads, they most likely don't need to be reminded of what's going on: The evil Lord Voldemort (Ralph Fiennes), having taken over the Ministry of Magic, is bent on the destruction of Harry Potter (Daniel Radcliffe).

Meanwhile Harry, along with his best friends, Hermione (Emma Watson) and Ron (Rupert Grint), has dropped out of Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry to find the "Horcruxes" that give Voldemort his power and immortality, and vanquish him forever.

One of the best things about "Deathly Hallows-Part 1" is how director David Yates has resisted over-reliance on technology. (It was announced a few weeks ago that plans for a 3-D release had been scuttled, a development for which the audience can only be grateful.) Certainly there are some spectacular special effects in the movie, including a wonderful 360-degree shot in which a roomful of Harry's friends and protectors all turn into Potter lookalikes.

But rather than sheer spectacle or trickery, "Deathly Hallows-Part 1" is memorable chiefly for its human drama, most of which is played out between Harry, Hermione and Ron as they wander a wintry landscape whose bleak contours fit the story's dire emotional tone. ANN HORNADAY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

"This film is very much a road film. I feel it's the most European of the films; it's very much about the three of them; it's really emotional."

127 HOURS (R, 90 minutes) "127 Hours" tells the true story of Aron Ralston, a climber who in 2003 became trapped in a slot canyon in Utah, his right arm pinned under a falling boulder. Most of the buzz about the movie, which stars James Franco, centers on the film's climax, when Ralston breaks and then amputates his own arm in order to escape certain death. Although Ralston's act of desperation is difficult to watch, viewers who avoid the film would be depriving themselves of an exhilarating experience. A.H.

DUE DATE (R, 95 minutes) With "Due Date," director Todd Phillips perfects the particular brand of comic alchemy. Like "The Hangover," this film features mismatched guys who don't know each other very well on a road trip punctuated by ever-more-outrageous mishaps. Of course, the main thing the film has in common with "The Hangover" is Zach Galifianakis, the comedian who betrays uncommon grace despite his heavy frame. He's a hirsute, gloriously unself-conscious man-child, unfettered by the laws that govern the rest of us, including those of good taste, social interaction and gravity itself. That pretty much sums up Ethan Tremblay, Galifianakis's character who sets out on a road trip with architect Peter Highman (Robert Downey Jr.). A.H.

FAIR GAME (PG-13, 104 minutes) Naomi Watts delivers an uncanny portrayal of former CIA operative Valerie Plame in "Fair Game," a political thriller that deftly navigates the knife edge between all-too-familiar recent history and more universal personal drama. For the most part, director Doug Liman steers clear of re-litigating the Leak of Plame's name to the media during the Bush administration, instead focusing on how her being a spy, and then being outed, affected Plame's

FOR COLORED GIRLS (R, 120 minutes) At first glance, this film seems aimed squarely at the audience of the "woman good, man bad" melodramas. The men in Tyler Perry's adaptation of Ntozake Shange's stage play include a rapist (Khalil Kain), a child murderer/wife beater (Michael Ealy), a serial cheater (Richard Lawson) and a closeted gay man (Omari Hardwick) who has been dipping into his wife's bank account. And that's not even counting the minor jerks from this dated relic of the women's empower-satisfying conclusion to the trilogy of Swedish thrillers based on Stieg Larsson's best-selling novels follows Lisbeth Salander (Noomi Rapace), the series' computer-hacker heroine and titular hornet's nest kicker, after movie No. 2 left her shot in three places and barely breathing. Lisbeth spends the entire first half of "Hornet's Nest" merely recuperating from her injuries and preparing to face a charge of attempted murder in the axing of her father (Georgi Staykov). Yes, he's a bad man. He has also been protected by a secret government cabal that resorts to threats and murder. M.O.

HEREAFTER (PG-13, 129 minutes) "Hereafter" plays like a smart and stylish thriller. Smart because of the way it pulls back from a full-on embrace of its central premise: the existence of an afterlife for the human soul. Stylish because of its cool and bloodless demeanor. At the center of the mostly mesmerizing but finally flawed film is George Loneyan (Matt Damon). In the script by two-time Oscar nominee Peter Morgan, which has been directed with restraint by Clint Eastwood, George is a former professional psychic who has shut down his lucrative Bay Area practice to work as a menial laborer. His ability to talk to the dead through readings is less the gift one might think. M.O.

MEGAMIND (PG, 90 minutes) At the center of this utterly delightful film is its eponymous hero — er, villain — a blue-skinned alien who was sent to Earth as a baby when his home planet exploded. Unlike his superhero nemesis, Metro Man (voice of Brad Pitt), another refugee from a dying world, Megamind (Will Ferrell) did not grow up with "the power of flight, invulnerability and great hair," as he so bitterly puts it. Instead, Megamind has had to learn to get by on the powers that reside within his giant, bald cranium. That and showmanship. M.O.

MORNING GLORY (PG-13, 102 minutes) Rachel McAdams labors mightily to be adorable in this fitfully funny romantic comedy set in the weary, bleary vineyards of morning TV. McAdams plays Becky Fuller, a hardworking producer at an obscure New Jersey show who's unexpectedly canned as the film opens. Down but not out, Becky lands a gig executive-producing a bottom-rated network morning news show. Becky's chief foil in "Morning Glory" is curmudgeonly news veteran Michael Pomeroy (Harrison Ford), who she dragoons into co-hosting the "Daybreak" program alongside aging diva Colleen Peck (Diane Keaton). A.H.

UNSTOPPABLE (PG-13, 98 minutes) Director Tony Scott achieves something close to the action movie in its ideal form with "Unstoppable," which can be summed up thusly: Train out of control! Must stop train! A young, inexperienced railroad conductor named Will (Chris Pine) is on his first shift with veteran train operator Frank (Denzel Washington) on the same day that a train carrying tons of hazardous materials has been sent hurtling down its tracks without a conductor or functioning brakes. A coolheaded train executive named Connie (Rosario Dawson), helps Will and Frank face the impending crises. A.H.

1 Rock Hard

We've got your Friday night figured out. Start at U Street Music Hall with a dance party benefiting Girls Rock DC. DJs Natty Boom and DJ Vanniety Kills will be spinning, to show you that girl DJs similarly rock, and then you yourself may rock and prove that all people everywhere are capable of rock. And at 10 p.m., it'll all be over and you can move on to the next party. U Street Music Hall, 1115A U St. NW; Fri., 5 p.m., free; 202-588-1880, Ustreetmusicall.com. (U St.-Cardozo)

2 Rave On

The next party is, of course, an enormous blowout at the Warehouse Loft. It's Warehouse North's last party of 2010, and you'd think the world was ending at midnight on Dec. 31 from the buzz on this party, but we admit thought of wild glow stick dancing made us incredibly excited and then made us go out and buy extra glow sticks just in case we didn't have enough in the supply closet. Warehouse Loft, 411 New York Ave. NE; Fri., 10 p.m., $5 before 11 p.m. and $10 after; Wildnorthdc.com. (New York Ave.-Gallaudet)

3 Revival Meeting

Though, certainly, some people will go see it because Phylicia Rashad is starring and they remember her from "The Cosby Show," we have high hopes for the substance of "Every Tongue Confess," a magical realism take on the deep wilds of Alabama, complete with tent revivals and sweaty dance halls. It is Alabama, after all. Sweaty is pretty much given. Arena Stage, 1101 6th St. SW; through Jan. 2; 202-554-9066, Arenastage.org. (Waterfront)

Live Performances

SUN
8:00

The American Music Awards are typically so packed with performances, the actual awards are almost an afterthought.

That's likely to be the case again this year, with at least 16 performances planned for Sunday night's ceremony at the Nokia Theatre.

"Each performance is like a show unto itself," said producer Larry Klein.

His team encourages each artist to come up with a unique concept and look for his or her performance, and almost anything goes.

"We're the only show that gives each individual artist the creativity and the right to collaborate and come up with something great that's specifically done just for them," he said.

Justin Bieber brings his gravity-defying coiffure to the American Music Awards.

For Pink, that means a stage full of skateboard ramps. Another performer (Klein wouldn't say who) will appear on a set with moving boxes and elevator lifts.

Carlos Santana, who is performing with Gavin Rossdale, says he doesn't have any special tricks up his sleeve other than to "make the females happy."

"That delicious sensuousness, it's a whole galaxy in itself," he said.

Other performers scheduled to take the stage include Kid Rock, Justin Bieber, Taylor Swift, Katy Perry, Ke$ha, Christina Aguilera, Ne-Yo and Usher.

Closing the show will be New Kids on the Block and the Backstreet Boys in their first-ever TV performance together. "It's like a mash-up. They're throwing lyrics back and forth, trading off songs," Klein said. SANDY COHEN (AP)

Futurama

(COM) In this "Futurama Holiday Spectacular," Fry, Leela, Bender and the rest of the Planet Express crew are on a mission to preserve the classic December holidays — which have changed quite a bit in the past thousand years. Al Gore and Coolio supply guest voices. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

Cameos

Unreal Time

Brian's writing career is tanking until Stewie becomes his manager, and one of his books makes the best-seller list on "Family Guy" (9 p.m. Sun. on Fox). This sudden fame gives Brian a swelled head, which is promptly punctured by comedian and pundit Bill Maher, who voices his own cartoon likeness in the new episode "Brian Writes a Best-Seller."

Horoscope

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You are waiting for something, but you may not know what. By day's end, your patience may be strained, but you can hold it together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Family members may be circling the wagons at this time to face a threat that you've been expecting for a while.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may not be willing to admit that the mistakes you've made in the past day or two are all your own, but no one else is responsible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) The theory you're entertaining at this time is worth nothing if you cannot gather a little proof. It's time for a full investigation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Take care that you aren't so willing to believe the experts that you're actually led down the primrose path.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The demands that are made on your time may require you to rethink your management strategy. Focus on what you know best.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're likely to find yourself in an enviable position before the day is out. Take care that you don't flaunt your status needlessly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be best served by an approach that allows you to take in the scenery as you progress. Pay attention to peripheral developments.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things may not develop in order of significance, but with a little care you can have things prioritized in no time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone may be trying to slow you down or stop you altogether, but your ingenuity allows you to proceed unheeded.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Heightened activity leads you to a decision that was, in essence, only a matter of time. Others watch you with some amusement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can be a little more daring and aggressive, though you don't want to get in anyone's face when you find yourself in a disagreement.

Samurai Sudoku

DIFFICULT

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.

Dane Cook will make his Broadway debut next year in a production of Neil LaBute's "Fat Pig." He teams up with actor Josh Hamilton this spring in the darkly comic tale of a bachelor who falls for a plus-size girl. "Fat Pig" premiered off-Broadway in 2004 and has been staged in Los Angeles, Boston and London's West End. (AP)

CONSONANTSWoman Whose Name Should Be Spelled 'April' Divorces Man Whose Name Should Be Spelled 'Derek'

Avril Lavigne and Deryck Whibley have finalized their divorce. A judge approved terms of the breakup on Tuesday in Los Angeles. The agreement calls for each to keep the rights to his or her song catalogs, awards and guitars. The two married in July 2006 and have no children together. (AP)
